

I am opposed to this proposal as I am concerned that this system will cause excessive interference with existing over the air ham radio frequencies. In the past I have had interference problems caused by the present coaxial cable TV/roadrunner system, leaky cable connections and cable modems that radiate very strong interfering signals, I cannot imagine how interference can be prevented on a open wire, power line, system of varying impedance.